

We are, all of us, save for the vagaries of physical or mental illness, poverty, addiction, or unforeseen circumstances, about one half step away from the 'troubled families' and 'families in crisis' we work with - and just about the same distance from the safety net of services we have woven to protect and restore them.

Thus we make a grave mistake if we begin by thinking of 'us' and 'them'.

It's just 'us'. All of us together

Professor James Whittaker, University of Washington School of Social Work, 1995

"Homeless" 1890 Thomas Kennington - Bendigo Art Gallery

The management & Staff of Loddon Mallee Housing Services Limited would like to recognise and thank our voluntary Board and special project volunteers who have recognised that the 'safety net of services we weave' depends on all of 'us' recognising it is only, ever, always, 'us together'.

... Where the heart is ...